BIO

Eva Rehfuess, BA MA(Oxon), PhD holds the Chair of Public Health and Health Services Research at the LMU Munich and is spokesperson for the Pettenkofer School of Public Health in Munich, Germany.

Nine years of working for the World Health Organization inspired her keen interest in methods for evidence-based public health and her passion for global health. Much of her research relates to the evaluation of complex interventions in complex systems, notably in low- and middle-income countries and with a focus on non-communicable diseases, environmental health and public health nutrition.

She is the Director of a WHO Collaborating Centre for Evidence-Based Public Health, the German co-coordinator of the Collaboration for Evidence-Based Healthcare and Public Health in Africa and co-speaker of the German Alliance for Global Health Research.
