

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR PETER DELOBELLE

BIO

Peter Delobelle (MD PhD FRSPH) is a public health scientist with more than twenty years' experience in research, teaching and services delivery in health policy & systems and health promotion.

His research focuses on non-communicable diseases in low- and middle-income countries including the role of the food environment using systems thinking, implementation science and integrated knowledge translation.

He is Principal Investigator of FoodSAMSA at the Chronic Disease Initiative for Africa, University of Cape Town, and teaches global health promotion & disease prevention and essential skills in global health for a MSc Global Health in Belgium.

EMAIL: PETER.DELOBELLE@UCT.AC.ZA
